

ETHAN ARENSON

Ethan Arenson is an attorney with the United States Federal Trade Commission and serves as the FTC's Spam Coordinator. Among other matters, Mr. Arenson is currently litigating the Commission's enforcement action against 3FN, a black hat Internet Service Provider that recruited and knowingly distributed malicious electronic content, including malware, botnet command and control servers, and child pornography. Mr. Arenson is also litigating the Commission's lawsuit against the international syndicate responsible for the "WinFixer" family of rogue security software, which has defrauded consumers out of more than $100 million. Prior to joining the Commission, Mr. Arenson worked for six years as an associate in the litigation group of Holland & Knight LLP. Mr. Arenson graduated with a B.A. from American University and a J.D. with honors from the George Washington University Law School.