

Remko BOS

Remko Bos (1965, Haarlemmermeer, The Netherlands) studied Economics at the Free University Amsterdam. After a brief career in the academic field - in the period 1993-1995 he was a researcher in the field of industrial organization and competition policy at the Erasmus University Rotterdam - he started working for the Ministry of Economic Affairs in the field of competition policy. Before beginning his career at OPTA (2000), he worked for two years at the Netherlands Competition Authority in the field of merger control. During his years at OPTA, Remko Bos held a variety of positions such as deputy director Strategy and co-ordination, deputy director Interconnection and Access and Market Analysis Decisions. Currently he is director of the department Markets, and he is also a member of the Board of OPTA.